CASH FLOW FORECASTING: A CITY'S PERSPECTIVE

Monty Hanks
Investment Analyst, City of Roseville

Editor's Note: Periodically, CDIAC invites guest authors to contribute articles on topical issues of interest to the public finance community. CDIAC publishes these articles as educational resources for local governments and does not specifically endorse any of the tools or products described in them.

The word "forecast" might evoke images of a meteorologist on the evening news. Financial forecasting for a municipality, however, is a different subject altogether. There is no need to visit a mystic or gaze into a crystal ball. With a well-organized and planned approach, you can positively influence your city's bottom line.

The City of Roseville, California takes a disciplined and systematic approach to its financial plans, which has proven successful for the city's finances. Roseville, located 16 miles north of Sacramento, is where in 1864 the Central Pacific Railroad and a small rail line connecting the towns of Lincoln and Folsom once intersected. Roseville was a small trading center for area farmers and later developed into a bedroom community for Sacramento. Incorporated in 1909, Roseville today is a full service city with a population of more than 100,000 residents.

To illustrate the size of Roseville, listed in Figure 1 below provides an estimate of the city's 2007 appropriations.

Figure 1

Estimated Operating Expenditures	$293,819,947
Capital Improvement Projects	$89,462,701
Other Uses	$99,978,543
Total Estimated Appropriations	$483,261,191

The City of Roseville uses cash flow models to maintain financial fluidity. While revenues and expenses are the fundamental elements of the city's cash flow model, ideally, expenditures should never exceed available resources. If this were to occur, the imbalance would require immediate attention. It is essential to establish a strong management team to monitor and analyze each department's cash flow in order to calculate and anticipate when, where, and how cash needs might occur. Communication with finance staff, project managers, and financial advisors is critical.

Why Run Cash Flow Models?

Cash flow models assist local agencies in meeting certain statutory requirements, which help ensure the safety and liquidity of the investment portfolio. California Government Code Section 53600.5 mandates that one of the objectives of a Treasurer is to meet the liquidity needs of the depositor. Also, Government Code Section 53646 requires the investment report to include a financial statement that denotes the ability to meet expenditure requirements for the following six months.

Creating Cash Flow Models

The cash flow models should promote thought and discussion amongst staff. When the models are built, problem areas may surface and adjustments can be made in advance. An opportunity to make these adjustments ahead of time endorses sound fiduciary responsibility and reduces the chance of liquidating an investment at a loss to meet obligations.

There are several ways to create a cash flow model. The easiest way to begin creating a cash flow model is to use a spreadsheet program such as Microsoft Excel. The Microsoft website provides a simple cash flow template and can be downloaded at office.microsoft.com/en-us/templates/TC010175121033.aspx?pid=CT101172761033 and modified as necessary.

DEBT LINE IN-BOX

“A review of events shaping the future of public debt issuance and investment practices in California.”

California Economy to Slow in 2007

According to the Center for the Continuing Study of the California Economy (CCSCE), California’s economic growth likely will slow in 2007 as the housing slowdown and lower consumer spending take hold. However, solid gains in jobs and a boom in foreign trade should keep the economy from sliding into recession, according to the CCSCE forecast released November 10th.

The forecast was released as part of a larger report, California Economic Growth—2006 Edition, that looks at the state’s economy for the next ten years. That report concludes that California is poised to outperform the nation in job and income growth in the long run.

The forecast predicts job growth will come in below 200,000 in 2007, down from 285,000 in 2005. This lower level of job growth will push the unemployment rate – which has been in the high four percent range – above five percent. Income growth and spending are also expected to slow, which may push state budget revenues below current projections.

In the longer term, however, the forecast calls for the State to add three million jobs during the next ten years, with some of the biggest gains coming in technology, foreign trade, business services and tourism/entertainment.

The report indicated the state’s economic growth could be affected by several significant issues including the adequacy of affordable housing and whether the improvement/development of infrastructure can accommodate the growing population.

A press release that discusses the report’s findings can be viewed at the CCSCE website at www.ccsce.com. The report itself is available for purchase at the same website.

El Dorado County to Offer Financial Aid as Fees on New Homes Increase

El Dorado County supervisors tentatively approved a long-term financing program to assist with the payment of development impact fees assessed on new homes. County supervisors approved the Statewide Community Infrastructure Program (SCIP), which provides the long-term financing. The program may provide financial assistance to homebuyers, builders and real estate agents who are affected by the impact fees on new construction.

The California Statewide Communities Development Authority (CSCDA) serves as the joint powers authority in charge of issuing and administering long-term financing on behalf of the county. The bonds are limited obligations of the borrower.

The county Department of Transportation recommended the program as development fees for new homes have increased in recent years, ranging from $13,670 to $37,000 per home, depending on where the home is built. Fees for general commercial developments range from $7.90 per square foot to $10.85 per square foot. The program was proposed to allow property owners to pay traffic impact fees over time; however, it also can be used to finance other public infrastructure, such as frontage improvements required for residential or commercial development.

There is a $1,500 fee and application that must be completed to participate in the long-term financing program. Information can be obtained from the CSCDA website at <https://cscda.cacommunities.org/apps/scip/>.

CASH FLOW FORECASTING

Figure 2 provides a sample quarterly cash flow template. Under “Cash on Hand,” revenue sources such as property tax, sales tax, vehicle license fees, coupons and maturities from investments, utility payments, and other sources such as user and developer fees are listed. The spreadsheet calculates the total of these revenue sources under “Total of Cash Receipts.”

Examples of expenditures that can be forecasted include such items as debt service, payroll (including taxes and retirement), material and service contracts and/or Capital Improvement Project (CIP) payments. The sum of these lines is totaled under “Total Cash Paid Out.” The agency’s “Cash Position” is then calculated by subtracting “Total Cash Paid Out” from “Total of Cash Receipts.” In Figure 2, cash flow forecasting is broken out into quarterly segments. Once all the revenues and expenditures have been input, information can be further delineated into monthly (or weekly) timeframes. Figure 2 below will help create a picture for the cash flow analysis.

	1st Quarter	2nd Quarter	3rd Quarter	4th Quarter

Expenditures:

Variable revenue and expenditure categories also can be included in the spreadsheet, however, they may be difficult to estimate due to uncertainty associated with their cash flows.

Forecasting for the City of Roseville

To forecast cash flows for the City of Roseville, I rely on data from prior reporting periods. For example, I sort the data by month for the prior 36 months. Based on the findings, I project future revenue and expenditures. Figure 3 below shows an example of the City of Roseville’s Parks & Recreation revenues.

If my estimates (highlighted in Figure 3) are significantly skewed, I carefully examine prior months' numbers to find an answer for the discrepancy and try to determine the cause. In most cases, employees closer to the situation can quickly provide background information about the increase/decrease in their department's numbers. For example, in March 2006, my historical data showed a large increase in revenue compared to the previous years' data. The City's Cash Management Specialist knew that Parks & Recreation added a new, one-time program to their system that month, which caused the variance. As in this example, asking the right people can save time and effort when trying to ascertain the reason for a discrepancy. Maintaining open communication among departments keeps employees thinking about the big picture and how they fit into it as a whole. Proactive communication helps our staff maintain awareness of potential issues so we can plan for them in advance. It is not necessary to know all the answers, but it is important to know where to get them.

Capital Improvement Projects

One area of the cash flow process that is difficult to address is CIP payments. For example, there often are several budgeted projects that have numerous project managers. Many of these high-dollar projects have an uncertain cash flow. My early experiences dealing with the project managers were the most difficult as I would request estimates of project costs but often would either not get answers or simply receive total costs divided by the remaining months of the project. While many of the project managers were willing to help, they did not appear able to understand conceptually the information that I was requesting. Working with the budget manager, we developed the following spreadsheet for the project managers to assist them in their estimates (see Figure 4 below):

Figure 4

City of Roseville CIP Cash Flow Projection FY 2006

PROJECT	Estimated FY 2005 Budget	1st Quarter: July 1 - September 30	2nd Quarter: October 1 - December 30	3rd Quarter: January 1 - March 31	4th Quarter: April 1 - June 30	Total Fiscal Year
Program Manager: ELEC ENERGY SRV MGR
034003	401 Oak-Energy Efficiency Imp (40001 Electric Projects)
	32 Engineering Services	35,000
	45 Construction	465,000
044004	PROJECT TOTAL	500,000	xxxxx	xxxxx	xxxxx	0
	Load Management Project (40001 Electric Projects)
	1 Labor 01	50,000
	21 Travel/Training	(59)
	30 Services	(1,170)
	32 Engineering Services	47,030
	40 Equipment	450,000
	PROJECT TOTAL	545,801	xxxxx	xxxxx	xxxxx	0
TOTAL ELEC ENERGY SRV MGR		1,045,801 $	$	$	$	$

The budget department requires all project managers to update their cash flow projections during the annual and mid-year budget processes by estimating the expenditures on a quarterly basis for the fiscal year. Once all of the projects have been updated, the spreadsheets are compiled and linked to a summary sheet, which totals each quarter. This provides reliable data on the planned expenditures and aids in targeting investments to meet expenditures.

Regular department meetings are another technique that the City of Roseville uses to successfully estimate CIPs. Over the course of a few meetings, I have built a relationship with these individuals that has resulted in a better understanding of each other's needs and perspectives. The meetings provide the opportunity to adjust projected cash flows, which in turn help staff in budgeting accurately and maintaining adequate safety, liquidity, and yield of investments.

Cash flow forecasting is an ongoing process. Once there is an understanding of how money flows through an agency, one can analyze, monitor, adjust, modify, and communicate with all parties to build a financial forecast. In the long term, the agency will benefit from a balanced, well-organized and accurate financial forecast.

2006 GENERAL ELECTION STATE BOND AND TAX MEASURE RESULTS

Jorge Madrid

Senator Richard G. Polanco Fellow

Californians had an opportunity to voice their opinion on several significant bond and tax measures found on the November 7, 2006 General Election ballot. Voters approved a total of five general obligation bond measures, authorizing the issuance of up to $42.669 billion in bonds for various infrastructure and public facility projects. All four state tax measures were defeated. Figure 1 provides a summary of the election results for these measures. The remainder of the article provides a brief description of the bond measures that were approved, including specific information on funding and financing information for local government projects.

*Reported as of 11/14/2006

Bond Measures

Proposition 1B. Proposition 1B, the largest of the bond measures, authorizes up to $19.925 billion to improve and expand California freeways, highways, and roads in an effort to improve safety, improve seismic safety of local bridges, complete carpool lanes, reduce air pollution, and expand public transit. The bond will also improve security at shipping ports. Of these funds, $3.6 billion will be used for local rail and transit services, $2 billion will be used for local road improvement, $1 billion for local transportation project grants, $400 million for improving intercity rail service, $125 million to seismically retrofit local bridges and overpasses. The measure passed by a 22 percent margin.

Proposition 1C. Proposition 1C, a $2.85 billion bond, will be used to provide shelters for battered women and their children; housing for low-income senior citizens; homeownership assistance for the disabled, military veterans, and working families; and repairs and accessibility improvements to apartment for families and disabled citizens. The measure includes $300 million in grants and loans to local governments to encourage more dense development near public transit, $200 million for housing-related park grants, and $125 million in grants to local governments to reduce barriers to affordable housing. The measure passed by a 14 percent margin.

Proposition 1D. Proposition 1D, a $10.416 billion bond, will provide $7.329 billion to K-12 public schools for modernization projects, new construction, and to relieve overcrowding. In addition, funding will be used for charter and career technical school facilities, environment-friendly projects, and for joint-use projects. A total of $3.087 billion will be distributed to the University of California, California State University, and California Community Colleges for building improvements and to build new classrooms. The measure passed by a 14 percent margin.

Proposition 1E. Proposition 1E, a $4.09 billion bond, will be used to rebuild and repair California's flood control structures and to protect the drinking water supply system by rebuilding delta levees. The majority of the funds ($3 billion) will be used for flood control in the Central Valley region. In addition, $500 million will be used for flood control subventions for local projects. The remaining funds will be used to provide grants to local agencies for stormwater management ($300 million) and to protect, create, and enhance flood protection corridors ($290 million). The measure passed by a 28 percent margin.

2006 GENERAL ELECTION RESULTS

Proposition 84. Proposition 84 authorizes up to $5.388 billion to fund projects relating to safe drinking water, water quality and supply, flood control, waterway and natural resource protection, water pollution and contamination control, state and local park improvements, public access to natural resources, conservation efforts, and emergency drinking water. Many of these projects contain funding for regional water conservancies and grant or loan funding to local agencies. Some of the Proposition 84 funding will be used for local grants and loans including: $1 billion for integrated water management, $180 million for small community safe drinking water infrastructure, $130 million for Delta water quality improvement, $90 million for development of regional and local land use plans, $90 million for protecting beaches and waterways from pollution, and $15 million for reducing discharges of pollutants from agricultural operations. The measure passed by a six percent margin.

Specific information on these propositions may be obtained from the California Secretary of State's Office. The election results reported in this article are current as of November 14, 2006 and are uncertified. CDIAC will compile a complete listing of all state and local bond issuance and tax-related measures after the election results have been certified. These results will be published in a future edition of Debt Line.

SEMINAR ANNOUNCEMENT

THE ABC'S OF SCHOOL DEBT FINANCING

CDIAC Offers School Debt Financing Seminar To CASBO Members

The California Debt and Investment Advisory Commission (CDIAC) will provide a debt financing seminar, The ABC's of School Debt Financing, to the California Association of School Business Official (CASBO) members. The seminar will be offered on January 11, 2007 in Sacramento, and on January 18, 2007 in Ontario. This one-day seminar will focus on various sources of financing options for schools and delve into the school debt issuance process utilizing tools such as, general obligation bonds, mello-roos financing, and, certificates of participation notes. Moreover, CDIAC speakers will highlight other essential steps necessary to issue and manage debt issuance.

CDIAC is an MCLE approved provider. CDIAC's educational programs are also accepted by many certification entities as "certifiable".

For more information on the curriculum, call CDIAC at (916) 653-3269. To register for the seminar on either date in January, visit www.casbo.org.

THE FUNDAMENTALS OF LAND-SECURED FINANCING WORKSHOP

The California Debt and Investment Advisory Commission (CDIAC) will present The Fundamentals of Land-Secured Financing workshop on February 15, 2007 at the Sutter Galleria in Sacramento. It is intended for local government officials and other professionals seeking to utilize land-secured public financing for capital facilities and/or services. The workshop will compare and contrast Mello-Roos and Special Assessment District financing options. Featured topics include: Basic Structures of Assessment and Community Facilities Districts Financing, Pre-Formation Considerations, District Formation Process, Project Implementation, Bond Issuance, and Administration of Liens and Bonds.

The workshop is designed with two, three-person panels representing some of the pre-eminent private and public practitioners of land-secured financing for Assessment Districts (ADs) and Community Facility Districts (CFDs). The AD panel will consist of Sam Sperry with Orrick, Herrington and Sutcliffe LLP; Nelson Smith with the City of Bakersfield; and Joan Cox with Harris and Associates. The CFD panel will consist of Larry Rolapp with Fieldman, Rolapp & Associates; Bob Davison with the County of Sacramento; and Susan Goodwin with Goodwin Consulting Group.

The Fundamentals of Land-Secured Financing workshop is presented as part of CDIAC's ongoing technical assistance program and qualifies for MCLE credits. Register online at www.treasurer.ca.gov/cdiac. Contact CDIAC at (916) 653-3269 for more information.
