ARRANGEMENTS WITH DEPOSITORY BANKS -- INFORMATION ITEM

Mr. Mark Hariri, Director of the State Treasurer's Office, Centralized Treasury and Securities Management Division, presented this information item. He noted that the purpose of the presentation is to report to the board on an annual basis the cost of banking services for all state depositories, as well as on any new products, fees or services. The Treasurer maintains demand accounts with eight financial institutions including the largest banks in the nation.

The table attached to his report shows the cost of banking services which continues to decline as a result of efficiencies, automation as well as electronic collection and processing of state revenue. For the past eight-years the cost of banking services has declined by almost 43% and is expected to continue to decline as a result of increased use of remote site deposits together with negotiating lower fees, and the recent award of the EFT contract to Union Bank is projected to result in an annual savings of over one-quarter of a million dollars.

In October the STO held its annual bank meeting with one notable difference. Instead of individual meetings with each bank, as has been done for 60 years, and following Deputy Treasurer Mr. Tim Schaefer's direction, one meeting was held which included all state depositories. The meeting was intended to serve as a listening session given the many common concerns that are shared by all the banks. The meeting was very productive and was favorably received by all of the banks.

Mr. Hariri noted that the Federal Reserve Bank/Federal Open Market Committee (FRB/FOMC) was meeting on December 16th, to discuss the long anticipated decision to begin the first of a series of interest rate increases. The Fed is expected to raise the Federal Funds Rates (FFR) by 25 basis points until the rate reaches 3.75%, which economists consider to be a neutral rate. This increase will necessitate a review of the Earning Credit Rate that is used by STO to determine the compensating balances required to pay the banks for services provided to the state. The impact of an increase would be a reduction to the level of compensating balances. The difference would be returned to the pool and would generate additional investment income to the participants. Mr. Schaefer stated that the bank meeting held in October is the beginning of a series of listening sessions in the banking community to include very large depositories as well as smaller community banks and larger banks that are not transnationals. The intent is to get a better understanding of how changes in banking regulations are affecting the way banks charge the state for services as well as the earnings credit rate they receive for their services.
