An account owner who is an individual (other than an individual who is a custodian under the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act) is specifically referred to in these regulations as an “individual account owner.” An account owner who is a custodian under the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act is specifically referred to in these regulations as a “custodial account owner.” An account owner that is a trust, estate, partnership, association, company or corporation, or a state or local government agency, is specifically referred to in these regulations as an “entity account owner.” Account owner includes the legal representative of an account owner.

Act – means the Golden State Scholarshare Trust Act

Cash - shall include but not be limited to checks (except for travelers checks, third-party checks exceeding $10,000, money orders, or cashier's checks), rollover distributions, payroll deduction, automatic contribution plan, and electronic funds transfers. Cash does not include property.

The document or court order must be dated within sixty (60) days of receipt by the Scholarshare trust. The program administrator or its designee shall rely conclusively upon the document or court order until the earlier of its stated expiration date or the date of receipt by the program administrator or its designee of a document or court order terminating the authority evidenced thereby. The legal representative of an account owner shall be deemed to be acting for or on behalf of the account owner in the account owner's legal capacity.

Non-qualified distribution - means any distribution from an account other than 1) a qualified distribution; or 2) a withdrawal by reason of the death or disability of the designated beneficiary of the account or a scholarship received by the designated beneficiary to the extent that the amount distributed does not exceed the amount of the scholarship, all as provided in Section 30954(d); or 3) a rollover distribution.

Rollover distribution - means a distribution or transfer from an account for a current designated beneficiary that is transferred or deposited within sixty (60) days of the distribution into an account for another designated beneficiary who is a member of the family of the current designated beneficiary. A distribution is not a rollover distribution unless there is a change of designated beneficiary except that a change of designated beneficiary is not required for a distribution or transfer that occurs between qualified tuition programs, provided that such a distribution or transfer cannot occur more than once within a twelve-month period from the date of a previous distribution or transfer by the account owner for the same designated beneficiary. For rollover distributions that involve a change of designated beneficiary, the newly designated beneficiary's account may be an account established under the Act or established within another qualified tuition program and the account owner must certify in the written request for the rollover distribution that the new beneficiary is a member of the family of the current beneficiary. If the rollover distribution is by a state or local government agency or an entity described in Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code and identified in Section 30959 (a)(2), the newly designated beneficiary cannot be a member of the family of the current designated beneficiary and the account owner must so certify in the written request.

- 7) a certificate signed by the trustee of a trust, a court order, or a certified copy of the portions of a trust instrument, that confirms the creation of the trust and the identity of the trustee, and provides authorization for the trustee to act as a signer for the account of the trust;
- 8) a letter or memorandum from the Internal Revenue Service indicating that the entity is an organization described in Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue code;
- 9) an original memorandum exhibiting the appropriate letterhead and containing the holographic signature of (a) the chief executive officer of a corporation or limited liability company; (b) the general partner of a partnership; (c) the owner of a sole proprietorship; or (d) the chief executive officer of a state or local government agency; or
- 10) if the entity account owner is unable to provide substantiation in any of the foregoing forms, the entity account owner may propose an alternate form of substantiation to the program administrator or its designee for consideration. The program administrator or its designee must review the alternate form of substantiation for authenticity and completeness and must accept or reject it the form. If determined to be authentic and complete, the program administrator or its designee must act on the alternate form of substantiation within thirty (30) business days of determination. An account owner may be an account owner for more than one account provided the designated beneficiary of each account is different. An individual may be the designated beneficiary on more than one account provided the account owner of each account is different.
- (f) Canceling Participation Agreements. Any account owner may cancel a participation agreement at will by submitting written notification to the program administrator or its designee. - (c) Change of Account Ownership by Custodial Account Owner Prohibited. A custodial account owner is not permitted to transfer ownership of a custodial account.
- (d) Contingent Account Owner. An individual account owner may designate another individual or an entity as a contingent account owner to become the owner of the account automatically upon the death of the individual account owner by submitting a written request to the program administrator or its designee. The contingent account owner designation may be revoked by the individual account owner at any time by submitting to the program administrator or its designee a written request that either designates a new contingent account owner or revokes all previous designation(s) of a contingent account owner. Upon the death of the individual account owner who has in effect a designation of a contingent account owner, the assets of the account shall not be deemed assets of the estate of such deceased account owner for any purpose. The change of ownership shall not be effective until the successor account owner has submitted to the program administrator or its designee a certified copy of a death certificate sufficiently identifying the deceased by name and Social Security number, or such other proof of death as is recognized under applicable law and is acceptable to the program administrator or its designee, and a completed participation agreement signed by the successor account owner.

The program administrator or its designee shall not implement a change in ownership (other than a change in ownership described in paragraph (d) of this Section) without first receiving a written request signed by the account owner of record, a court order, or an affidavit or declaration as herein described. Section 30957 Dispute Resolution

- (a) Optional Pre-Arbitration Procedure. In the event a controversy or claim arises out of or relates to a participation agreement, the account owner or designated beneficiary may elect to discuss the matter informally with the program administrator or its designee. If the dispute is not resolved to the satisfaction of the account owner or designated beneficiary, the account owner or designated beneficiary may send a letter explaining the dispute to the Executive Director of the ScholarShare Investment Board. The Executive Director or his or her designee shall meet in person or by telephone with the account owner or designated beneficiary within ten (10) working days of receipt of the letter from the account owner or designated beneficiary or such longer period as may be mutually acceptable, and the Executive Director or his or her designee shall mail a written decision, and the reasons therefor, to the account owner or designated beneficiary within twenty (20) working days of the meeting. The procedure set forth in this paragraph is not a substitute for mandatory arbitration, which is required by paragraph (b) below. The procedure set forth in this paragraph is an informal process that may resolve controversies and claims and make arbitration unnecessary.
- (b) Arbitration Mandatory. Any controversy or claim arising out of or relating to any participation agreement, or the breach, termination or validity thereof, shall be settled by arbitration administered by the American Arbitration Association, and judgment on the award rendered by the arbitrator(s) may be entered in any court having jurisdiction thereof.
- (c) Arbitration Clause and Disclosure. Every participation agreement shall include the following arbitration clause and disclosure language. The arbitration clause and the disclosure language shall be underlined or printed in bold face type.

Any controversy or claim arising out of or relating to this participation agreement, or the breach, termination or validity thereof, shall be settled by arbitration administered by the American Arbitration Association in accordance with its Commercial Arbitration Rules, and judgment on the award rendered by the arbitrator(s) may be entered in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

The foregoing is a predispute arbitration clause. By signing an arbitration agreement, the parties agree as follows:

- 1) All parties to this agreement are giving up the right to sue each other in court, including the right to a trial by jury, except as provided by the rules of the American Arbitration Association.
- 2) Arbitration awards are generally final and binding; a party's ability to have a court reverse or modify an arbitration award is limited.
- 3) The ability of the parties to obtain documents, witness statements and other discovery is generally more limited in arbitration than in court proceedings.

- 4) The arbitrators do not have to explain the reason(s) for their award.
- 5) The rules of the American Arbitration Association may impose time limits for bringing a claim in arbitration.

- (d) Predispute Arbitration Clause Disclosure. Immediately preceding the signature line on the application portion of the participation agreement there shall be a statement, which shall be highlighted, that the participation agreement contains a predispute arbitration clause. The statement shall also indicate at what page and paragraph the arbitration clause is located.
- (e) Copy of Agreement to Account Owner. Upon request by an account owner, the program administrator or its designee shall provide the account owner with a copy of the participation agreement executed by the account owner, within ten (10) business days of receipt of the account owner's request.
- (f) Information Upon Request. Upon request by an account owner, the program administrator or its designee shall provide the account owner with information on how to contact or obtain the rules of the American Arbitration Association.

- (a) Rollover Distribution From Another Qualified Tuition Program. An account owner (other than a custodial account owner) may make a rollover distribution at any time from another qualified tuition program to an account, either owned by the same or a different account owner, by submitting a written request to the program administrator or its designee and by complying with applicable federal and state law governing this transaction. The rollover distribution shall be effective provided that the transfer of funds does not cause the aggregate amount of contributions held for the new designated beneficiary to exceed the maximum account balance limit applicable to that beneficiary.
- (b) Rollover of Account Funds Methods. A rollover of account funds from another qualified tuition program shall be effective through a direct transfer of funds from the other qualified tuition program to an account, or as a deposit of the funds by the account owner into an account within 60 days of withdrawal of the funds from the other qualified tuition program. Both the direct transfer of funds and the deposit of funds by the account owner must be accompanied by a written statement from the other qualified tuition program that identifies the portion of the amount directly transferred, or deposited, that represents contributions and the portion of the amount that represents earnings.
- (c) Limitation of Rollover of Account Funds to Savings Programs. A rollover distribution from another qualified tuition program shall not be accepted unless the funds are transferred from a qualified tuition program as defined in Section 529 (b)(1)(A)(ii) of the Internal Revenue Code.
- (d) Transfer of Account Funds as Rollover Distribution. An account owner (other than a custodial account owner) may transfer funds from an account to another account either owned by the same or a different account owner at any time by submitting a written request to the program administrator or its designee. The transfer of account funds shall be effective provided that: (1) the funds are transferred to an account for a new designated beneficiary who is a member of the family of the designated beneficiary of the account from which the funds are being transferred and the account owner so certifies in the written request (unless the entity making the rollover distribution is a state or local government agency or an entity described in Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code and identified in Section 30959(a)(2) in which case the account owner must certify that the newly designated beneficiary is not a member of the family of the current beneficiary); and (2) the transfer of funds does not cause the aggregate amount of contributions held for the new designated beneficiary to exceed the maximum account balance limit applicable to that beneficiary.

- (e) Execution of New Participation Agreement. Any rollover distribution that is intended to transfer funds to a new account not yet established under the Act shall not be effective until the account owner who is to receive the transferred funds has submitted to the program administrator or its designee a completed and signed participation agreement for the new account and the account has been established.
- (f) Rollover Distribution to Another Qualified Tuition Program. An account owner (other than a custodial account owner) may make a rollover distribution at any time from an account to another qualified tuition program by submitting a written request to the program administrator or its designee and by complying with applicable federal and state law governing this transaction.
 - 1) The program administrator or its designee shall treat the rollover distribution as a non-qualified distribution unless the program administrator or its designee receives confirmation that the amount of the distribution has been deposited in another qualified tuition program within sixty (60) days of distribution from the account.
- (g) Rollover Distributions Requested By Entity Account Owners. An entity account owner must provide with the written request for a rollover distribution substantiation that the rollover distribution is authorized by the entity and that the signer of the written request is authorized to conduct the transaction.

A state or local government agency or an entity described in Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code and identified in Section 30959(a)(2) may make any rollover distribution set forth in Section 30958 at any time by submitting a written request to the program administrator or its designee with substantiation that the rollover distribution is authorized by the entity account owner and that the signer of the request is authorized to conduct the transaction, and by complying with applicable federal and state law.
